

Two-day National Webinar on “Considerations Towards A Theory of Social Change”

9th and 10th December 2021

Theme of the Webinar

Change is an obvious and unchangeable fact of human life. Different changes happen in the society focusing on the different aspect of human life with an intention of progressing towards a more developed world. Whenever we think of change, we not only focus on the future-directed ways, but we equally evaluate the background and identity of the past. Thus, these two essential points are equally important to make the change meaningful. Any change in the society not only changes the outer living of individuals, it also affects the psychological states. Change of any sort, in this context, becomes a challenge for the society which can be easily understood considering the existing global problem of COVID-19 and the social changes taking place. In this, context, Professor Daya Krishna’s discussion on Considerations Towards A Theory of Social Change will certainly open a door of understanding and scope of philosophical interpretations and solutions. The aim of the webinar is to discuss the notion of social change with special reference to Professor Daya Krishna’s book on Considerations Towards A Theory of Social Change.
